Resveratrol: an ingredient for healthy aging

Resveratrol is a polyphenol that is found in several types of plants. It draws a lot of attention from the scientific community with more than 9000 studies

How does resveratrol work?

Mitochondria are the powerhouses which make energy inside every cell in our bodies. As we age, mitochondrial function becomes slowly impaired. This leads to the decline of many systems in our body as we get older including cardiovascular, cognitive, skin and bone.

Resveratrol has been shown to penetrate cells and help rejuvenate the mitochondria thus supporting healthier aging. By working at this cellular level resveratrol is able to have a beneficial effect on many parts of the body.

Made like no other

Veri-te™ resveratrol is produced using an innovative natural yeast fermentation process. This means our resveratrol is:

published to date. This published research and clinical data suggests that resveratrol can be a vital ingredient for healthy aging.
